Susie Proctor House (site)
Pooleville Vicinity, Jerusalem
Private

This two story frame dwelling contained two rooms down and two up. A brick stove flue ascended through the middle of the house. This house was similar in plan and construction to those of other small landowning families of that era in rural Montgomery County.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house no longer stands. According to community informants, William and Cora Moore and Howard Lyles, this house was a two story frame dwelling with two rooms down and two up. It did not have a cross gable pediment like the William Moore and Noah Clarke houses in Jerusalem, and the stove flue ascended through the middle of the house.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

According to 228/450, this tract of 1 acre was purchased by Susan Proctor from Nannie Poole, William W. Poole and his wife Carrie in 1912. The house was presumably constructed soon thereafter. This seems likely since it was a frame house instead of a log house, which was the earlier type of housing for the first families of the Jerusalem community.

The daughter of Susie Proctor, Mae Estelle "Mollie", married Noah Clarke, a neighbor. This is another example of this community becoming like an extended family, as did Sugarland and Jonesville. Kinship strengthened the bonds of the community.
